- 3. "In September 1953 quantities of rotten cucumbers were thrown away on the Polish coast. Trucks loaded with cucumbers were driven to certain meadows in the coastal area and unloaded. At first the cucumbers had stood about in large barrels in the yards of the food cooperatives. Then they were divided into two parts: those that were rotten all through, were taken away and thrown on meadows in the country; others that could be used somehow, were distributed among canteens subordinated to ZPGG (Zaraad Protow Gdansk-Gdynia), administration of the ports of Gdynia and Gdansk, e.g., the canteens of Basen Weglowy, Kapitanat Portu, Zarzad Portu, etc. The rotten cucumbers distributed to the canteens were packed in barrels. The workers were indignant and said it was a simple thing to preserve cucumbers any housewife is able to do it but for the Socialist state it was too difficult a task.
- 4. "About 75 per cent of all the country inns have been closed down in Poland. At present only a large village will have an inn. The private inns which were allowed to exist in the small villages in the first years of People's Poland have been liquidated and replaced by cooperatives (spoldzielnie spozywow). Actually, most private inns were liquidated in 1947.

nowhere to go to meet each other. The copie suspect that this was a measure to go to meet each other. The copie suspect that this was a mean on purpose. I heard a CP bors say that the farmers had to devote themselves to their work only - that was good enough for them. (Unfortunately I don't know any details about the man; I say him at the Orbis Restaurant (formerly Grand Hotel; in Copot in May or June of 1953. When we commented on this remark, a friend told me that the man was a peasant's son himself and had been promoted through 'svens socjelny'.)

Cafes

- 6. Cafes (Cukiernie) still exist in the towns. On weekdays they are usually compay, at least in such towns as Pounday, Calardk, Edgets, Szczecin, etc. nowever, on Saturdays and Sundays all of them are full to capacity despite the extremely high prices.
- 7. "A piece of cake (gateau) or a good cake plus a very small cup of coffee costs 25 zl. However, the cakes are good and the coffee is the real thing. A whole gateau costs 120-150 zl. and is very good with checolate, fruit, whipped cream and marzipan. It is possible to order one and take it home, but who is wealthy enough to spend such a sum on a cake, however good.
- 8. The people who visit the cases are 'biurclists' (office workers), of functionaries, officers of the UB, WOU and the Army, as well as those members of the intelligentsia (bywszych ludiej) who have retained their posts in the government and economic apparatus. The old and the new intelligentsia both go to cases. They do people go to the cases? They look for a little change from the grey monotony that is everyday life in Toland. Besides, the cases remind one of the good, old times.
- 9. "Despite everything there are still two privately-owned cafes at dopot. One of them lies close to the Beltyk cinema on Ulica Rokossovskiego. Earlier the owner had a large cafe but was compelled to 'sell' it to the state, i.e., the cooperative. He also kept a private bakery and candy shop. Now he has only a small-scale bakery which is popularly called the Sweet Hall 'Slodka Dziurka'. Of course, it is only a question of time when this bakery will be taken over, too.
- Restaurants Income of Vaiters

 10. "I had a good friend who was a waiter at Nowy Port in Gdansk. This man told me the following about life of the waiters:
 - The actual income of a waiter is at present [summer 53] 1,500-1,800 zl. monthly. His basic pay is only 700-850 zl. but he makes much more by resorting to various tricks. Thus, the bill is about 20 percent higher than it ought to be, aport from tips. If the bill for a dinner is 100 zl., twenty zl. are added under various headings - 120 zl. is the price of a dinner for four at a first-rate, but not the very best restaurant in Poland. It consists of vegetable soup, cucumber soup or 'zur', meat balls with potatoes and vegetables (e.g., carrots) and the sweet apple am or fruit compote. The price also includes a couple or bottles of beer. As a rule the customers keep calm although everybody is aware of the practice: they consider that a waiter, too, must live. A more unappetizing trick is to collect the dregs from all vine and vodka glasses and to serve these to customers. Another common practice is for the waiter to have his own bottle of works. with him. He serves this to the customers in glasses and puts the money in his own pockets. To make his account tally, he writes out duplicate bills where the vodka is not mentioned. Everybody who works at a restaurant uses these tricks, but nobody bothers them because 'they are human beings, too'. It is said that the management has its own manipulations to attend to.

"tall 'evening restaurats' the co-called 'consumer fee' ha reguln been made 11.0 compulsory, as it was a year ago [1952]. The amount demanded depends on the quality of the restourant. As a rule it is 30-50 xl. It is almost doubled when some entertainment is offered at the restaurant. The consumer fee (popularly called konsumecia) means that the bill can never be less than that amount.

- Variety Shows
 Wall variety artists are subordinated to the Przedulebiorotwo Improv Artystycznych 'artos' which was established a couple of years ago. Its hesaquarters are in Warsaw, and there are branch offices in all voivodship spitals. Troubes of artists tour the country in accordance with directives received from Artos and under contracts concluded through that agency. As a rule these contracts last one month, when the month is pect, the troupes proceed to enother town. Criticism of bureaucracy is among the most popular subjects treated in the programmes of such artistic troupes. Usually the programs are called: Song, Humour and catice (spicy humor i satyre). I feel, however, that in the last year and a half the projection of anecdotes and jokes in the program has been considerably cut. As a rule these ensembles of singers and story-tellers perform in civilian clothes. They dress alike - in summer, in grey Themself and blue costs. Couples demonstrating various dences on the dance floor, and dancing acrobats can no longer be seen anythere in Joland. The orchestra constats of four or five persons, at least one of whom is a UE agent who observes the customers as well as his colleagues. Individual members of the orchestra are frequently transferred from one hand to another, in order to avoid too close friendshaps between the musicians. The result is detrimental to the quality of the music, but this does not bother the authorities.
- Barbers and Hairdressers There are no private barber chops or bairdressers left in Gdansk; all have been 3.3turned into cooperatives (spoldzielnie fryzyrskie). Some hairdressers still call on their customers at their homes efter hours to give a shave, but this service is rare. The bairdresser-cooperatives often have too many administrative personnel: it can happen that an establishment employing 9-10 hairdressers will have at the same time three or four office workers.
- "The establishments are clean enough, as a rule. A haircut and shave costs 12-16 21., depending on the establishment; a certain difference still exists between the various establishments, although they have all been turned into cooperatives. A theve without harrout costs about 3-5 zl. A permanent wave (a hot one, of course, not chemical) costs about 35-50 21. Other prices for women's work are not known to me. As a rule, about 15-20 per cent is added to every bill as payment for the 'service'.
- "A razor blade costs 1 zl. The Polish blades are still of a very bad quality. 15. Swedish raper blades are in great demand."
